Program, march honors King

by Tracy Richards
staff reporter

University students and faculty kept the dream of Martin Luther King Jr. alive Wednesday night with a program followed by a silent march in honor of the late civil rights leader.

The celebration was designed to commemorate the contribution King made to everyone, said Charlene Queener, director of minority programs and activities.

"The Dream Lives On" drew a crowd of more than 200 spectators, leaving only standing room in Prout Chapel. The program was a mixture of speeches, skits, songs, poems and a slide show presented by members of various minority organizations.

Because King's message holds a universal message for all races, his dreams should not be forgotten, said Jack Taylor, vice president of minority affairs.

"To restrict the influence of Martin Luther King Jr. is to suggest that whites do not share in his dream of liberty and justice for all," he said.

Queener said she hoped the program would inspire people to defend civil rights and make a contribution such as the performers in the program had.

"There are individuals and groups on campus contributing to the community through their organizations," she said. "I hope people in the audience thought about what they can do to keep the dream alive."

"Contributions are coming from all sides — social, political, educational and business sides of the community."

These contributions are an important part of learning outside the classroom, Queener said.

Many of the representatives from minority groups who spoke during the program tailored their speeches around how King's dream affected their organizations.

Brigitte Byrd, president of the minority business association, spoke on behalf of her organization during the program.

Her speech was designed to pay respects to Martin Luther King Jr. from a business point of view, she said.

"As business majors we are part of the black population," Byrd said. "It is important for us to be represented."

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People also outlined how King's influence still has repercussions within the organization.

Lindaie Jones, president of the NAACP, said the organization supported the work of King "by promoting activities which are thought-provoking and beneficial for everyone."

"I hope my speech inspired everyone to take part in minority activities and show support by spreading the word and helping others to be more racially aware," he said.

Although Martin Luther King Jr. Day was officially celebrated Monday, the program took place Wednesday night due to the three-day weekend.

Last year's program — "Celebration of a King" — also took place at Prout Chapel. Bowling Green Mayor Edwin Miller said the city would honor Martin Luther King Jr. annually on Jan. 18.

This year's program was co-sponsored by the Office of Minority Programs and Activities and the board of black cultural activities.

Reagan saluted by Bush

by Lee Byrd
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A jovial George Bush began his inaugural whirlwind Wednesday by paying tribute to his political mentor of the last eight years and promising school teachers that from the moment he is sworn in as the nation's 41st president "education will be on my desk and on my mind."

"I don't believe I'd be standing here as president-elect of the United States if it hadn't been for the way President Reagan treated me as vice president and then the way he rolled up his sleeves and went to work ... helping his vice president be elected," Bush told a Republican National Committee luncheon, saluting the man who vanquished his presidential hopes in 1980, and bolstered them mightily in 1988.

"When I go say farewell to him tomorrow, it won't be too easy," he said. "We're not coming in to correct the ills of the past. We're coming in to build on a proud record."

But first Bush took time to honor America's teachers.

"This is my very first event on the inaugural calendar. ... That's the way I wanted it, meeting with educators," he told 230 top-rated public school teachers, gathered from every state.

"I know you've heard me say during this campaign that I intended to be the education president. Two days before I begin trying, I wanted you to know that I meant it."

"Education will be on my desk and on my mind right from the start," he said.

New NCAA law reconsidered

by Andy Woodard
assistant managing editor

John Thompson's stand against Proposition 42 has caused collegiate coaches and presidents across the country to reconsider it.

The controversial new NCAA by-law denies scholarships to incoming freshmen who don't meet certain academic standards.

Most university head coaches interviewed Wednesday agreed with Thompson, Georgetown University's head basketball coach.

Thompson has boycotted Georgetown's last two Big East Conference games — Saturday with Boston College and Wednesday at Providence.

USA TODAY reported Wednesday that Thompson will not return to the sidelines until he sees progress toward rescinding Proposition 42.

"I'm really supportive of John Thompson's stand," said Jacquie Joseph, Falcons head softball coach. "Here's a man who's putting his money where his mouth is. He believes in what he's doing."

"He's made a lot of people re-think about this issue."

Although head men's track coach Tom Wright said he agrees with Thompson's opinion on Proposition 42, he said he would rather see the Big East as a whole take a stand.

"I respect John Thompson for what he's done," Wright said. "But if he can say something and make the (NCAA) presidents re-think about it, I have to be concerned about that. I agree with what (Grambling head football coach) Eddie Robinson used to say, 'It's a law now, so let's get on with our jobs.'"

"But don't get me wrong. I don't think this (Proposition 42) is the best thing for college athletics."

Currently, Proposition 48 requires freshmen to score a minimum of 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT, plus have a 2.0 grade point average in high school to be eligible to compete in intercollegiate athletics. Those who do not meet these standards are still eligible for scholarships but must sit out their first year.

Proposition 42 was passed at the NCAA Convention in San Francisco last week by a vote of 163 to 154. In August 1990, it will amend Proposition 48 by denying athletic scholarships to freshmen who do not meet the requirements of Proposition 48.

Miami riots prompt study

by Richard Cole
Associated Press writer

MIAMI — City commissioners voted unanimously Wednesday to appoint a panel to investigate an interracial slaying that touched off two nights of rioting by blacks, leaving one person dead and buildings burned and looted.

The vote during an emergency session came amid warnings from black leaders that only quick action to ease racial tension could prevent more violence.

The panel will investigate the slaying Monday of Clement Lloyd, a 23-year-old black motorcyclist shot in the head by a white policeman as Lloyd and a friend sped through Miami's black Overtown section.

The panel was created at the suggestion of Miller Dawkins, the lone black on the five-member city commission, who wanted a board consisting of five policemen and five Overtown residents with Mayor Xavier Suarez as chairman.

Dawkins acknowledged the board will not satisfy the young people throwing rocks and bottles, and he appealed to them for time.

"I'd like to tell them to give us a chance to work this out, and to work on all our other ills, such as poor housing, poor education, joblessness," he said. "And they have to work with us instead of creating other problems like they are doing now."

Seven people have been shot, one fatally, and about 20 buildings burned and numerous others looted in Overtown and black Liberty City, since the riots broke out. None of the others shot were seriously hurt.

All was quiet by midday Wednesday except for sporadic gunfire in the Liberty City neighborhood, and there were no plans for a curfew. But black leaders warned Suarez before the commission meeting that blacks will no longer accept empty promises.

The violence interrupted Miami's preparations for a gala celebration for Sunday's Super Bowl at Joe Robbie Stadium north of the city.

The FBI, the State Attorney's Office and the police internal review board are also investigating the police shooting, which also claimed the life of the motorcyclist's passenger, who died Tuesday of head injuries suffered in the subsequent crash.

William Lozano, 29, the police officer who shot the motorcyclist, was relieved of duty with pay pending the investigation.

Council postpones standard

An ordinance forcing single-family unit property owners in two city residential districts to conform to 1975 zoning standards was tabled indefinitely by Bowling Green City Council last night.

Because zoning violations are taking place, the ordinance would prevent more than three unrelated people from living in one unit.

Current examples of nonconforming situations were described to Council by several city residents — such as 14 students living in one house.

Councilman Jeff Gordon said the existing condition is so poor because enforcement is based on the original zoning ordinances of 1975 which govern the single-family units.

City attorney Michael Marsh said although attempts have been made in the past to prosecute violators, it is a difficult process.

"You have to prove use or disuse of the property in 1975, which is how many people lived there then. The amount of rent paid doesn't prove anything and neighbors tend to forget," Marsh said.

Councilman Bill Blair said he is opposed to new legislation and would like to see current legislation enforced.

If not tabled, the ordinance, which was up for a second reading last night, would have been voted on at the next council meeting, Feb. 6, after a third reading.

In other business, former mayor Bruce Bellard received an award from the City-University Relations Committee for his work in this area.

Council approved 11 appointments by Mayor Ed Miller to public utilities commissions.

Utilities Director Daryll Stockberger reported to Council the nitrate level in Bowling Green's water was down to 10.4 parts per million. Although this is a decrease, he said, there is still a danger for some members of the community.

Thursday

According to the National Weather Service at the Toledo Express Airport, today will be increasingly cloudy with a high around 40. There is a slight chance of flurries tonight with a low of 25 and a 30 percent chance of snow. Tomorrow will be cloudy with scattered flurries and temperatures in the 30s.

News in Brief

Reagan's departure leaves Hearst pardon uncertain

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patty Hearst Shaw says she's not sure whether President Reagan's recent expression of interest in her request for a pardon means one will be forthcoming.

"I don't know," she said during a brief interview Monday with The Advocate of Stamford at her Westport home. "It's a little premature for anything like that. If he (Reagan) doesn't approve it, it would go to the next administration."

Shaw, granddaughter of newspaper tycoon William Randolph Hearst, last August quietly asked for a pardon for her role in the 1974 robbery of a bank.

She has maintained she was brainwashed by the radical Symbionese Liberation Army, a group of self-styled revolutionaries who abducted her in Berkeley, Calif., in February 1974 and orchestrated the bank heist.

Shaw was convicted of charges connected with the bank robbery and sentenced to seven years in prison. Her sentence was commuted by Reagan's predecessor, President Jimmy Carter and she was released from prison on Feb. 1, 1979, after serving 23 months.

Reagan, who leaves office Friday, said Sunday that he had "asked everybody to look into this for me." He did not elaborate.

Editorial EditorNew city tax unfair to 900

An ordinance recently passed by the Bowling Green City Council will, in the words of Councilman-at-large Thomas Anderson, stop over 900 citizens from "getting what they're not paying for."

More specifically, the ordinance will abolish the former 100 percent income tax credit received by residents who work outside of Bowling Green. The new taxing system, which went into effect on Jan. 1, establishes a 50 percent tax credit for the city's commuting workers.

Proponents of the new tax argue it is long overdue, and probably not even a strong enough measure. Those affected counter that the legislation is "double-taxation," since they also face an income tax in the city they choose to work.

Ward 2 Councilman Jeff Gordon said that such double-taxation is not unusual and added, "Bowling Green is probably one of the later cities to be put into this situation (of having to tax commuting workers)."

Residents of Toledo, however, encounter a slightly more forgiving system. According to City Treasurer Gerald E. Dendinger, Toledoans who work in another city only receive double-taxation when the other city's income tax is less than 2.25 percent.

Councilman Gordon said the 50 credit reduction was arrived at by meeting halfway between those who wanted total abolishment of the full tax credit and those who saw no need for change.

This brings to mind several questions. Apparently a city council of the past saw fit to avoid the double-taxing stigma by establishing the tax credit.

Can city council of today arbitrarily raise or lower the tax credit simply because of financial need? If the full tax credit was fair and just before, what makes it any less so now?

New Municipal Administrator Colleen Smith said that 42 percent of Bowling Green's workers commute to our city to work. The income provided by these transients is over $1.8 million.

Somehow the council's actions appear to be a case of getting something from a small minority that can do little to fight back.

NANCY ERIKSON - JUST SAY KNOW

Questioning Olscamp

Getting to know you, getting to know all about you. — The King and I

If there is anything that seems to be a constant at this University, it is that no matter how hard anyone tries, there seems to be an eternal gap between President Olscamp and the University students.

Now it's not that this gap has not been acknowledged.

Students have tried to show how they feel with rallies and demonstrations. I even remember a couple of years ago when a demonstration was given right in the middle of a meeting to discuss whether or not the foundation would divest.

These demonstrations were designed to get Dr. Olscamp and the rest of the faculty to listen to the students' point of view.

Dr. Olscamp has also tried to rectify the situation by holding open forums. These are set up in such a way that any student with any question could come in and "rap," so to speak, with the president.

Unfortunately, very few students have shown up to take this opportunity. And it doesn't exist because of any one person or group of people.

One cannot really say that Dr. Olscamp doesn't care or would rather have no one come to the forums. If he didn't want to get to know the students he would never have started the forums in the first place.

One also cannot really say that the students are lazy or apathetic because they don't take advantage of meeting Dr. Olscamp. Most people don't think about him at all. They have exams and papers and work and because of these responsibilities they never put "meeting Olscamp" on their list of priorities.

So in spite of the efforts on both sides, the gap still exists, a gap that could be filled very easily.

Every semester, for about the past five years, a publication called Miscellany magazine has been distributed around campus.

For the last two issues, there has been a feature called "20 Questions." This feature usually consists of a Miscellany reporter asking a faculty member 20 questions about their career or past or whatever.

Well, if you haven't guessed yet, I have been assigned the feature "20 Questions with Dr. Olscamp."

Now you may wonder why I am writing about this in my column. It may seem that I am only using it as a plug for Miscellany.

However, I would rather think of it as an invitation. I have not yet made an appointment with Dr. Olscamp for the "20 Questions" interview. Who knows? He may not even be available for an interview before my deadline.

Either way though, I am inviting you, the student body, to come up with questions that you would like me to ask Dr. Olscamp. Maybe some questions that you have always wanted to ask at a forum that you never had the time to attend.

In other words, I want to go into this interview and be a kind of representative of the students and, when I'm done, I hope my article will be a fair and adequate representation of Dr. Olscamp.

You may ask yourself: "Why do I need to send in a question or even read this article? I learn all I need to know about Dr. Olscamp from the BG News."

In some ways this is journalistic overkill. Of course, there are other faculty members that could be featured in Miscellany. However, there are very few that are so talked about but not directly to. There are very few that are so known of, but not known.

One of these faculty members is Dr. Olscamp. Although an article is not the same as a forum, hopefully my efforts will help fill the gap.

So remember, if there is anything you wish me to ask the President, please send them to the Newsroom in West Hall, Rm. 210.

Bengals fans say
Hensley is wrong

I would like to comment about Don Hensley's article, "49ers will return Cincy to Jungle." I have been a devoted Bengals fan for as long as I can remember, even when they had a losing season. Even though there are a lot of bandwagon jumpers out there (including Cleveland Browns fans), there are still many devoted fans.

You are obviously jealous that the Browns have not been to the Super Bowl. The Bengals have been there twice in the past eight years. Cleveland cannot win the big game — remember the "drive" of 1986 and the "fumble" of 1987. However, I give the Browns credit for making the playoffs this year with all the injuries they encountered, especially with Bernie Kosar and Webster Slaughter.

For your information, "who dey" is not a revision of the New Orleans Saints' "who dat." Hudephol Brewing Company (a Cincinnati brewery) produces a beer called HUDY. They use this phrase to market their beer in Cincinnati. "Who dey" has been around since 1981, a lot longer than Cleveland's "dawg pound."

You must have forgotten who was the number one team in offense and rushing and who had the only two running backs to average over five yards per carry. Let me refresh your mind — it was Cincinnati. They will defeat the 49ers with a score of 34-17.

Tony Rinaldi
308 Offenbauer East

Attention Don Hensley: Once again the irritating fans of the Cleveland Browns are no longer barking, but whining in the pound. Mr. Hensley, we don't know where you got the idea that we Bengal fans are "Cleveland wanna be's," but you couldn't be more wrong.

We love Cincinnati more than we dislike the barking "dawgs" of the opposite corner of this state. Also, the Bengals uniforms are as colorful and bold as their style of play and your remark is ignorant and useless.

In addition, the Bengal cheer, "who dey," is not a revision of the Saints' "who dat." It was introduced during the 1980 season by students and alumni of Newport High School (Cincinnati) who used it during their own baseball games. The cheer caught on and we fans proudly proclaim it.

"Bandwagon" fans are found not only in southwestern Ohio, but everywhere — including Cleveland. So give up that ridiculous idea.

Cincinnati may not win the Super Bowl (of course, they may also win), but you and other Browns fans need not vent your disappointment over a frustrating season on a NFL team that has proven its talent. Finally, thanks to John Elway and the Denver Broncos for bringing anger to the Browns fans and pleasure to the rest of us.

By the way, Dr. Ruth picked the Bengals. She has taste.

Mark Oertel
Greg Thomas
221 Rodgers

I am neither a Bengals, Browns or 49ers fan, but I am a great fan of the game of football and I found your article laughable at best.

By writing this article, you have: thrown all journalistic ethics out the window; enraged countless people (which I take it, was your intent); made a fool of yourself and the entire staff of the BG News; and made every Cleveland Browns fan on campus look like an idiot.

Personally, if I were a Browns fan, I'd be mad at you more than any raving Bengals fan because it's people like you who give Browns fans a bad name. I have no idea what Al Franco was thinking when he let you print it.

I can't believe that you even attacked cheers and helmet stripes. Also, I am glad that you are not my lawyer if I were convicted of a crime, because with your reasoning I'd get the chair for sure. You didn't even come close to presenting a single logical statement that could support your reasoning for why you think the Bengals won't win.

Let the Bengals fans gloat, and for that matter let the 49ers fans gloat also — after all, they have the right because their teams are in Miami. The News has the right to reject any material that is offensive, malicious, or libelous in their letters to the editor; maybe they should do the same with their editorials.

Rick Rettig
339 Bromfield

Instead of giving credit where credit is due, Hensley's article was devoted to ripping the AFC Champion Cincinnati Bengals.

Don't sell yourself short, Don, Cleveland fans are the most obnoxious in America. Any gloating you hear from Bengals fans is nothing but retribution from years past.

Your sports knowledge, or lack thereof, shines through when you make reference to the 1981 Super Bowl as an embarrassment to the Bengals. Instead of giving the Bengals credit for making it a close game, you believe the 49ers took the second half off and allowed the Bengals back into the game.

Let's make a deal: You don't comment on "who dey" and I won't mention the misspelling of dog.

Congratulations on the divisional championships of past years. However, the Browns must learn not to choke their chickens every time they get close to the Super Bowl.

Jeff Giles

Local abuse victims recognized

County agencies provide women shelter, counseling

by Fred Wright
staff reporter

Two Wood County agencies are working to combat the problem of domestic violence, which the U.S. surgeon general has declared the single greatest cause of injuries to women in the nation.

The First Step Women's Shelter in Fostoria provides a short-term living arrangement and offers food and clothing as well as counseling for victims of domestic violence in Wood, Sandusky, Seneca and Wyandot counties. In Bowling Green, the Wood County Mental Health Center offers programs to help both the victims and the assailants in a domestic violence case.

Chris Solarz, project director of the domestic violence program at the Mental Health Center, said the center offers two counseling groups — one set for women who are abused and one set for men who commit domestic violence.

Women are counseled in 12 two-hour sessions where they learn about the different types of abuse: physical, mental, economic and sexual.

"They reinforce the fact that the women are independent and have rights and choices," Solarz said.

Participants in the men's groups are often referred by the municipal court system through a court diversion program. Upon successful completion of the course, domestic violence charges against the man will be dropped, Solarz said.

The men's group meets for 18, two-hour sessions designed to help them replace their abusive behaviors with non-violent ones, Solarz said.

"We try to expand their emotional vocabulary," he said. "The emotion they express is anger and we teach them to identify other feelings such as being hurt or being jealous and express these feelings non-violently."

At the second agency, First Step, women and children can stay at the shelter for 30 to 45 days, according to director Terri Mercer. Project Passage, the organization's support group, aims at helping women establish self-esteem and independence and to understand about the violence.

Through Operation Starshine, the counselors at First Step also help children to understand the problem while emphasizing non-violent solutions, Mercer said.

Grad student wins grant to study childhood sexual injury

by Jim Tinker
staff reporter

A grant awarded to a University graduate student may help solve some of the questions involving the long-term effects of childhood sexual abuse on females.

Kelly Morton, developmental psychology graduate student, was awarded a $9,500 grant by the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), based on her proposal to study sexual abuse from a different perspective than is usually studied.

Morton said her research will involve studying three age groups — 15 to 17, 25 to 34 and 55 to 64 — and the effects childhood sexual abuse has had on them as they mature.

The approach is a new one because changes in society have altered the way women deal with abuse, she said.

Because abuse is more recognized in today's society than it was in the past, older women — who grew up in an era when abuse was largely ignored — have learned to suppress their pain, Morton said.

"Such a victim may have had to keep her emotions pent up for years," she said.

Although today's society offers more outlets for dealing with sexual abuse, Morton said she cannot find a high school that will allow her to survey its students.

If she is never able to obtain the necessary information from high school students, Morton said she will try to garner data from freshmen women at the University.

Initial data was obtained from the University Population and Society Research Center (PSRC), which compiled the statistical data on adult women to for Morton's project, according to Kimberly Wright, the center's survey branch director.

The center is conducting a random telephone survey of 8,000 to 9,000 households in the Bowling Green and Toledo metropolitan areas. Morton said the U.S. Census Bureau has determined these areas are representative of metropolitan areas in the Midwest and will reflect the number of women sexually abused as children. The questions asked during the survey are demographic and not personal, Wright said.

After the preliminary background has been obtained, detailed personal questions will be answered in writing by willing participants, she said.

"By and large, people seem just as willing to participate in this survey as any other," said Wright, who began the telephone surveys on Jan. 6.

Morton's position in the study will be to take the statistical information acquired by the PSRC and compile it into a paper to be presented to the NIMH later this year.

She said by obtaining an accurate percentage of females who have been abused as children, she hopes to prove the effects of childhood sexual abuse are more traumatic, mentally and emotionally than are the physical implications of the acts. She said she believes this because the victim's trust is betrayed by the abuse.

"My hypothesis is the victim's interpersonal and social development are most affected," she said.

Morton said prior studies on the topic indicate several long-term effects suffered by sexually-abused women include low self-esteem, a lack of trust in others and the feeling of powerlessness.

Although some victims of sexual abuse have already volunteered to participate in the survey, Morton said she cannot accept them as valid participants because they prohibit the survey from being random.

Coaches

The more demanding requirements have prompted other national collegiate coaches to question the NCAA's ruling.

Temple head basketball coach John Chaney said in USA TODAY Monday that he is prepared to go to court over the issue.

Falcons head men's basketball coach Jim Larranaga backed Thompson and Chaney Wednesday.

"By adding Proposition 42, they've taken away financial aid from students who aren't eligible to play. That's a mistake," Larranaga said by telephone from Oxford, where he was preparing his team for Wednesday's game with Miami.

"Any individual is entitled to their own opinion," he continued, "and John Thompson and John Chaney obviously feel strongly about this. Their opinion on this issue has come through loud and clear."

University coaches have complained that not enough time has been allotted to determine the effects of Proposition 48, which became effective in 1986.

Brian Gordon, head swim

coach, agreed, adding "the NCAA shouldn't decide how each university is going to use their own money," which Proposition 42 will do.

However, Larranaga said the issue could be dead before it goes into effect. The next NCAA Convention will meet in January 1990, long before Proposition 42 becomes law, he said.

Ordinance may lower rent

by Scott R. Whitehead
city editor

Next month, a vote by City Council on a nonconforming property use ordinance will decide the fate of property owners and renters in Bowling Green for years to come.

The ordinance was presented by Councilmen Don Pond (Ward 1), William Herald (Ward 4) and Jeff Gordon (Ward 2), who make up the Community Improvement Committee at the Dec. 19, 1988 council meeting.

Pond explained that in its present form the ordinance would eliminate all illegal property uses in the R-1 and R-2 zoning categories. All properties would have until 1995 to conform, and the only exception would be those landlords who receive a variance.

"The property owners would have to get a variance through the Board of Zoning Appeals and criteria could be historical use, such as if the property has a history of problems. Then the variance might not be granted," Pond continued.

Rick Ketzenbarger, city planning technician, explained that the current R-1 and R-2 zoning allows for one family and two unrelated persons to live in a house. If passed, the ordinance would disallow more than three unrelated students to live in the same dwelling.

Before Council will vote on the ordinance, however, the City Housing and Planning Commission must make recommendations on the proposal.

Pond added the ordinance could affect numerous property owners in the city, as well as students who live in those properties.

"Some people say that it will have a negative impact on off-campus students, because some students will be forced out of their housing," Pond said.

He explained that whereas eight students might be renting a house right now, the new law would limit the occupation to three.

"The property owners would naturally have to lower the rent, because three people will not pay the rent that eight people used to pay," Pond said.

Herald acknowledged that some landlords may lose money due to a limit on the number of renters.

"There are properties which have been illegally converted which will need to change if this goes into effect," Herald said.

"But if they are renting to eight students and they illegally converted their property, then I don't have much sympathy for them."

Pond added a passing of the ordinance may even create benefits for students renting an R-1 or R-2.

"It should be viewed positively for students. In the houses there will be more square footage per occupancy and the rents should be lowered to something more reasonable," he said.

Herald said he currently supports the ordinance, but not without some reservations.

"I think the concept is a very good one, but apparently there are some things which may need to be changed. Let's say it's 1995 and a good landlord receives a variance," Herald said.

"After the good landlord gets the variance he may sell the property to a bad landlord who may let the property become run down. And the variance lasts for the life of the property," he concluded.

Administrator makes history

by Amy Burkett
assistant city editor

For the first time in Bowling Green history, a woman has been appointed to the position of municipal administrator.

Colleen Smith took over the office Jan. 1, after the retirement of Wes Hoffman, former municipal administrator. Appointed by Mayor Edwin Miller, she received the unanimous approval of city council.

Since 1984, Smith served as assistant municipal administrator, although she has been involved in city government for the past 22 years. Smith began her service with the city of Bowling Green in 1967 as an account clerk.

Hoffman said Smith should effectively carry out her duties — which include helping the mayor set city policy and overseeing all city departments. However, her work load will be greater than that of previous municipal administrators since the assistant position has not been filled due to budget problems.

"She was by far the best choice for the position," Smith said. "It is a 24-hour a day job. She is always on call and there are many evening meetings and presentations to make."

Hoffman is not alone in his praise of Smith. Thomas Anderson, city councilman-at-large, said he shares Hoffman's belief about Smith's ability to execute the job of municipal administrator.

"Smith is extremely competent and gets work done quickly and courteously," Anderson said. "I was on council in 1972 and started to get to know Smith then. Throughout her years with the city she's gained the experience necessary to handle the job."

Although Smith said she has set many goals for the year, her personal goal is to establish team building within the city offices.

"I have very good department heads, but there is often a lack of communication between the departments and divisions," said Smith. "I want to eliminate the confusion that occurs as a result of not communicating in order to coordinate projects within the city."

One of Smith's goals for the city is implementation of the new master plan which the city has been working on for three years. She also said she wants to comprise a balanced and workable city budget in addition to assisting the promotion of economic development.

However, Smith said her most difficult area will be dealing with the emotional situations that result from zoning issues. Problems arise with zoning because of the different lifestyles between students and the city's residents, she said.

Swollen deficit reflects U.S. trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit ballooned to $12.5 billion in November, the biggest imbalance in five months, the government said Wednesday, in a report many private economists and even the Reagan administration viewed as a disappointing indication of how deep the country's trade problems are.

The Commerce Department said the trade gap was 22 percent larger than October's $10.3 billion deficit, reflecting a surge in imports, particularly for business capital goods, and a slight drop in exports.

"We have a serious competitiveness problem in this country," said Lawrence Chimarine, head of the WEFA Group, an economic consulting firm in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "There's a limit to how much you can improve by cutting costs and driving the dollar lower."

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the November performance was of concern but "we trust this is an aberration and does not change the overall trend."

Even with the November deterioration, the trade deficit for the first 11 months of 1988 was running at an annual rate of $137.3 billion, almost 20 percent below the all-time imbalance of $170.3 billion set in 1987.

Departing Commerce Secretary C. William Verity, a top administration trade expert, said the November report was disappointing evidence that the country's trade problems are far from being solved. He said the rapid pace of improvement in the first part of 1988 had leveled off in recent months.

Children return to shooting scene

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Children returned to class to confront their fears with help from psychologists Wednesday, just one day after a gunman fascinated by toy soldiers killed five youngsters at the school he attended as a boy.

Blood was washed from the pavement overnight and bullet holes were patched at Cleveland Elementary School, where experts said it was important that pupils, mostly children of Southeast Asian refugees, deal with the trauma immediately.

"I still feel upset, but I have to bring my kid to see the teacher to let the teacher know my kid's all right," Brom Lee said in broken English. "Everybody's angry. Your kid there, you get angry too."

His daughter, 7-year-old Nary, said she was scared to return because "I saw blood." Holding tightly to her father's hand, she pointed to her leg and said, "I saw somebody get shot right here."

Police said Patrick Edward Purdy, wearing an olive-drab shirt bearing the Iranian battle cry "Death to the Great Satan (sic)," on Tuesday sprayed more than 100 shots from an assault rifle, killing five youngsters ages 6 to 9 and wounding 30 other people.

A drifter who police said was either 24 or 26, Purdy killed himself with a pistol shot to the head after the mute, methodical attack during recess.

"Why he did this we may never know," said Capt. Dennis Perry. "We can only assume that some problem came up in this guy that made him do it. Obviously, he had a military hangup."

South African chief suffers stroke

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha suffered a stroke at home Wednesday, but was "clear-minded" and might appoint a Cabinet member as acting president, his office said.

Botha, who turned 73 on Jan. 12, was in stable condition at No. 2 Military Hospital in the Cape Town suburb of Wynberg after suffering a mild stroke, his office said. No further details were released.

Botha's health generally has been excellent since he took charge of South Africa's white-run government as prime minister in 1978. Under a new constitution, he became president in 1984.

Elize Botha, the president's wife of 46 years, and some of their five children came to the hospital to be with him, state radio said.

Botha was hospitalized shortly after 8 a.m., according to the South African Broadcasting Corp.

Botha's office said he was "quite clear-minded" and was likely to appoint one of his Cabinet ministers as acting president on Thursday.

According to South Africa's Constitution, the president can appoint a Cabinet minister to fill in for him temporarily. If the president is incapacitated, the Cabinet can elect one of its members as acting president.

Botha has refused to comment on his possible retirement. There has been intense speculation, but no consensus, about which Cabinet member might be selected by the National Party as Botha's successor.

Among those mentioned as presidential contenders are Foreign Minister P.W. Botha, who is not related to him; National Education Minister F.W. de Klerk; Constitutional Development Minister Chris Heunis; Finance Minister Barend du Plessis; and Defense Minister Magnus Malan.

The stroke occurred a few days after Botha returned to Cape Town from a month-long holiday at his coastal vacation home. On Friday, he was to meet members of Namibia's territorial Cabinet to discuss the planned transition to independence by year's end.

Poll finds Bush expectations high

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans think well of George Bush and hold high expectations for his presidency, but an overwhelming majority believe he will abandon his pledge of no new taxes, a national poll has found.

Six in 10 respondents to the Media General-Associated Press survey said Bush, who made his "read my lips — no new taxes" pledge a cornerstone of his campaign, should not seek a tax increase. But 71 percent said they expect him to do so.

Nonetheless, Bush, who takes his oath Friday as the 41st president, won high marks for his Cabinet choices and his preparations for office since the election.

He was viewed favorably by 59 percent of those surveyed, precisely the same approval rate President Reagan received in a Media General-AP poll last spring. Twenty-five percent rated Bush unfavorably; the rest withheld judgment.

In another favorable comparison with his popular predecessor, expectations for Bush's presidency came close to the ratings of Reagan's performance in a Media General-AP poll conducted in the fall.

Forty-eight percent in the new poll said Bush will be a good president and 13 percent said excellent. Similarly, this fall 47 percent said history would view Reagan as a good president, 20 percent excellent.

Death penalty injection reviewed

COLUMBUS (AP) — A Cleveland-area lawmaker who says he strongly supports capital punishment asked colleagues Wednesday to let Ohio's prisoners on death row choose between electrocution and lethal injection.

Rep. Ron Mottl, D-Parma, told the House Judiciary Committee that his bill providing an alternative to the chair would join Ohio with 17 other states that already have recognized lethal injections as "more humane."

Mottl testified as committee hearings on major bills began after two weeks of organizational work in the 1989 Legislature, which convened Jan. 3.

The House, in other action, passed its first bill of the year — an emergency act that permits the village of Stratton in Jefferson County to vote on a special tax levy Feb. 7.

Rep. Jerry Krupinski, D-Steubenville, said Stratton's need for a special levy stems from state revisions in utility property tax evaluations that occurred after the regular election last November. His bill, approved 89-0, now goes to the Senate for what Krupinski called "fast track" approval.

Senators limited their activities Wednesday to a skeleton session, with most of its Republican leaders having departed for Washington to attend the inauguration of President-elect George Bush on Friday.

City accused of discrimination

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal appeals court Wednesday ordered a lower court to reconsider an order allowing the city of Mansfield to hire firefighters while a racial discrimination lawsuit is pending.

A three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a pretrial ruling by U.S. District Judge David Dowd in a case in which blacks argue that the north-central Ohio city discriminates in hiring police and firefighters.

Mansfield officials were sued by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Walter Harris, who said he passed a civil service exam for a Mansfield police position but was denied a job while less-qualified whites were hired.

Harris, who is black, and the NAACP filed the lawsuit as a class-action, contending it represents 2,000 to 4,000 blacks who allegedly have been discriminated against by Mansfield. The lawsuit demands that the city develop an affirmative-action plan to increase black staffing, adhere to civil rights laws and pay damages, which would be determined at trial.

The plaintiffs also contended that Mansfield has continued to discriminate, so they asked Dowd to issue a pretrial injunction to prevent the city from hiring any police or firefighters until the lawsuit could be tried.

Dowd declined to prevent the city from hiring. He ruled that the plaintiffs failed to demonstrate a substantial likelihood of winning their lawsuit, which is a requirement for obtaining an injunction.

Lady Cagers nip Redskins

Gorman hits game-winner; Motycka injured in 65-64 win

by Amy Cole
sports reporter

OXFORD—The Bowling Green women's basketball team had one major obstacle to overcome Wednesday night against Miami.

That obstacle was not fear, nor was it nerves.

It was adversity.

BG's first bout with adversity occurred with 14:37 left to go in the game when forward Jackie Motycka was helped off the court with an injury to her right ankle.

Motycka, the Falcons leading scorer, was setting the pace with 10 points and three rebounds, but could not return to action due to her injury.

But the Falcons, now 12-3 overall and 4-0 in the Mid-American Conference, overcame the loss of Motycka to post a 65-64 victory last night in MU's Millett Hall.

"There wasn't any question it was a real good ballgame," BG head coach Fran Voll said. "We had some adversity, but I thought we hung in there and played hard."

It is a compliment to the team to be able to rise to the occasion without Jackie."

After trailing by as many as seven points in the second half, the Falcons put their second ranked MAC offense and third ranked defense into high gear.

"Our defense could take care of itself," Voll said. "With our offense—we needed to score."

With 2:37 to go in the game, BG trailed 64-59, but a jumper and a blocked shot by Megan McGuire, and a defensive rebound converted to a basket by center Angie Bonner brought the Falcons to within one with 1:32 left in the contest.

From that point, things began to fall BG's way. Following Bonner's lay-up, forward Tecca Thompson made two crucial plays down the stretch.

Thompson, a 5-foot-10 junior, forced a turnover which kept MU from going ahead by three. But a missed jumper by McGuire with 59 seconds left gave the Redskins another opportunity to win the game.

Following a rebound by MU's Regina Smith, BG's Paulette Backstrom was called for a foul which sent Smith to the line with 55 seconds left to play.

Smith missed both foul shots and McGuire rebounded, but a turnover by Thompson gave the Redskins the ball back with 33 seconds left to play.

MU failed to convert once again as a blocked shot by Bonner with 17 seconds left gave the Falcons their shot to win.

BG responded to the challenge as Backstrom passed the ball to Traci Gorman, whose shot was off the mark, but she gained her own rebound and put the ball in with six seconds left to give the Falcons their margin of victory.

Bonner led BG in scoring with 13 points, while McGuire and Backstrom chipped in with 12 and 11 points respectively. Maria Fantanarosa's 20 points led the Redskins.

BG loses by 23

by Brian Hollenbeck
sports reporter

OXFORD—If the Bowling Green men cagers were animals, they would have been put to sleep by way of mercy killing last night.

The Falcons, who shot an anemic 27.8 percent from the field, and failed to score a field goal for the first 9:41 of the second half, lost their sixth straight at the hands of the Miami Redskins by a score of 65-42. With Miami leading 29-21 at the start of the second half, the Redskins rolled off nine straight points before junior guard Darrell McLane nailed a free-throw with 14:33 left in the half, making the score 38-22.

Miami then increased its lead to 42-22 when Tim Stewart drove the lane for a layup. The Falcons got the first field-goal of the half when sophomore forward Joe Moore scored on a tip-in. The two teams then traded baskets down the stretch.

Even with the lopsided victory, Miami head coach Jerry Peirson wasn't satisfied with his team's performance.

"I thought we dominated the game for the whole 40 minutes, but it's not what you call a 'classic win,'" he said. "Even though we were kind of flat, we still accomplished the things we wanted to do offensively, but not in a smooth way."

I'm not complaining about the win, but it was a deadpan game; there wasn't much excitement out there."

Leading the way for the Redskins was Lamont Hanna who tallied 13 points and Karlton Clayborne and Stewart each added 12.

The Redskins finished the game shooting 49 percent from the field.

The Falcons, on the other hand, were led by Darrell McLane who had 11 and Ed Colbert who added seven.

BG head coach Jim Larranaga said even with his squad's poor shooting he felt the Falcons had a legitimate shot at winning the game at half-time.

"I thought if we came out and showed any type of toughness at the beginning of the half it would have been a darn good ball game," he said. "I'm not even going to spend a minute thinking about this one, it was just horrible basketball on our part."

Bell tolls for tumblers

Senior provides leadership for gymnasts

by Matt Schroder
sports reporter

Leadership is an essential factor in determining success of an inter-collegiate sports team.

Almost invariably, the responsibility to lead and add extra doses of spirit is placed on the shoulders of the seniors.

However, while most teams can rely on the talents of a small group of fourth-year performers, the 88-89 Falcon gymnastics team has but one - Suzanne Bell.

While Bell carries the distinction of being the only senior on the squad, it is the entire team that consistently seems to win the battle of spirit. Sophomore Kim Crawford was quick to point this out after the gymnasts recent meet in Colorado.

"Our team had a lot more spirit than anybody else. The biggest part of doing well is hearing so much support from your teammates," she said.

Head coach Charles Simpson said he recognizes Bell for her tremendous ability to exhibit leadership on the team.

"She is a tremendous leader, and you can underline that a few times," Simpson said. "She has done a lot to bring about morale. I'll remember her for that more than anything."

But the intangibles that Bell provides are not the only thing she will be remembered for in the years to come. Over the past four years, she has enhanced the BG gymnastics program with her outstanding talent, as well.

Her sophomore year she made the All-Mid-American Conference team in the floor exercise with a score of 9.15

As a junior, she improved her floor mark to 9.25, and earned a 9.1 on the vault to place fourth in the 1988 MAC Championships, despite being hurt for much of the season.

This year, Bell was elected team captain and has set a number of goals for herself. She realizes that her gymnastics career will be over in four months, and she wants to go out with a MAC Championship trophy.

"We've been so close to winning it all since I've been here," she said. "I think this will be the year we do it."

Her coach wants the same thing for Bell as well as the entire team.

"Her goal is to return to the All-MAC team, but I'm sure she would trade that in for a team trophy at the end of the year," Simpson said.

Bell is off to a great start this season, as she scored nines on the beam and on the floor exercises in the Colorado meet in December.

The team is headed in the right direction as well, as they won their first meet against defending champion Kent State.

With Bell as the captain of a talented group of young gymnasts, this year's squad has a legitimate shot at bringing the MAC trophy back to BG.

Reagan honored by ND

WASHINGTON (AP) — In one of the last public events of his eight years in the White House, President Reagan on Wednesday paid a sentimental tribute to the championship Notre Dame football team and received in return a sweater once presented to — who else? — George Gipp.

Reagan, whose role as Gipp, the Notre Dame star, in "Knute Rockne, All-American" gave him his first big break in the movie career that helped propel him to the presidency, told the players:

"I can't help thinking that somewhere a long way off there's a fellow with a big grin and a lot of pride in his school and he might be thinking to himself that maybe you won another one for the Gipper."

The line was a paraphrase of one spoken by Pat O'Brien as Rockne in the movie, invoking the memory of Gipp.

"The INF Treaty and George Bush's election were important, but having the Fighting Irish win the national championship is in a class by itself," he said.

The president of Notre Dame, the Rev. Edward Mulloy, presented Reagan with the sweater. The sweater had been awarded to Gipp for his performance as a halfback on the Notre Dame team in 1917 and 1918. "I think that's a great sacrifice by the university, but, believe me, no one could treasure it more than I will," the president said.

ONE ACCOUNT PLUS.
THE ADVANTAGES KEEP ADDING UP.

Only Fifth Third's One Account Plus can give you so much for so little per month.

Add up how much you're used to paying for checking. Now total up how much more you'd be getting (and how little you'd be paying), if you had One Account Plus. You'd get:

- Unlimited check writing
- Free personalized checks
- No minimum balance
- A Visa or MasterCard with no annual fee*
- Discounted rates on installment loans*
- Visa or MasterCard Ready Reserve
- Free traveler's checks, cashier's checks and certified checks
- Free Jeanie's Private Line bill paying
- Free notary services
- A free safe deposit box for one year
- Plus, interest on your money

The total cost for all these services? A paltry seven dollars a month. Just a few dollars more than most people pay for a regular account.

ADD ON ANOTHER PLUS
If you'd prefer getting all the benefits of a One Account Plus checking account, without paying the monthly service fee, just do one of the following...

- Maintain a minimum monthly balance of $2,000 in your One Account Plus checking account.¹
- Average a quarterly balance of $3,000 in a savings account.²
- Maintain a minimum monthly balance of $6,000 in a BankSafe® Account.
- Or deposit $7,500 to a Certificate of Deposit.

Call or stop by any Fifth Third Banking Center for more information on how to open your One Account Plus.

HAPPY 15th ANNIVERSARY UNIVERSITY AMBASSADORS

University Ambassadors, originally Hosts and Hostesses, were founded in 1974 as a service organization to BGSU faculty, alumni, and distinguished guests. This enthusiastic group of approximately 40 undergraduate students can be found representing the University at Parents Day, Homecoming, Commencement, Preview Day for prospective students, football games, presidential events, and many other activities. Working out of Mileti Alumni Center, Ambassadors help maintain alumni programming and strengthen University relations.
